

Autumn has arrived and we have a fabulous display of new books in the library, details below, and we also have a selection of books for sale/to swap with proceeds going to Macmillan Cancer Support.

We are promoting the theme of Emotional Support over the coming weeks with a book display in the library and online resources promoted each day on the library blog and on Twitter.

Our promotion features an introduction to Sam Tyrer, the Prevention and Engagement Lead here at the Trust. Sam is also the founder of a service called Change Talks, which offers mental health education to 11-21 year olds. This service has reached over 55,000 young people since the beginning of 2018 and it continues to go from strength to strength.

We will be featuring some of Sam's work over the coming weeks on the library blog and Twitter page as well as some useful resources Sam recommends for helping us all to provide emotional support, both at work and at home.

Our resource of the month for November is Knowledgeshare, details below. Please visit the library blog to sign up or to download the poster to share with your team.

KnowledgeShare is an online web-based current awareness system that is NHS OpenAthens password protected. We will create an individual profile detailing your interests providing a bespoke service to help you keep up-to-date with the latest evidence. Focusing on evidence that will change practice and the latest publications on quality, safety, education and patient experience, our aim is to bring you what you need to know and no more.

KnowledgeShare allows users to:

- Request evidence searches from our Library Knowledge Service and find searches requested by colleagues elsewhere (where permission has been given).
- Sign up for highly targeted updates based on your professional interests (weekly, fortnightly or monthly)
- Book onto Library knowledge skills sessions

How do I...?

Access my library record online?

Visit the library catalogue on our Trustnet page.

In order to access your library record online you will need to log in with your reader code and PIN number.

Your reader code is the full library membership number on your library card. Your PIN number is the 4 digits at the end of this number.

Once you have access to your record you can view your current loans and loan history and reserve or renew books.

You can only access your account from a Trust computer.
