Co-production and parental mental health

Published: 22/01/2025

Author: Katy Cleece, Dr Katalin Ujhelyi Gomez, Carley Hall and Parisa Quaynor

Pregnancy can onset or worsen mental health, sometimes leading to harm to the child. However, removing children by social services creates further trauma and can contribute to a cycle of repeated removal and trauma.

In November 2023, NHS England funded the Research Engagement Network development initiative to engage communities whose voices are absent. This led to co-production sessions on research methods, approaches and design with parents with experience of mental ill health, substance misuse, and children's social care intervention.

Moving Social Work

Published: 20/02/2025

Speakers: Phil John, Katy Cleece and Professor Brett Smith

This podcast discussion focuses on health and wellbeing, exploring how exercise can make a real difference to social workers and those they work with.

Book

The Atrocities of Hope: An Analysis of the 'Nigeria Problem'

Author: Michael Olukayode

Paperback (09 Apr 2025)

Nigeria is dealing with a level of disorderliness that is neither compatible with functionality nor with long life. Our problems did not start today; they have been with us for as long as we have existed as a country. But just like a disorder left untreated, our problem has incapacitated us, and the rate of deterioration is currently becoming alarming.

The long-term survival of our country is no longer as assured as it used to be. We are on a slippery slope with nothing to hold on to.

This book attempts to answer the 'what', 'why', 'who', and 'what is next' of our problems. As is always the case when truths are discussed, be ready to be offended.
